The Committee to Advance Our Common Purposes, CACP, is an initiative of the Office of the Senior Vice President for Academic Affairs. CACP was founded in 1987 and has a long history of recognizing excellence in diversity, inclusion, and equity. Dr. Denise Rodgers, the Vice Chancellor for Interprofessional Programs, RBHS, serves as chair and Isabel Nazario, Associate Vice President for Strategic Initiatives is co-chair. The committee includes faculty, students and staff from across the university— Rutgers University-Camden, Rutgers University-Newark, Rutgers University-New Brunswick, and Rutgers Biomedical and Health Sciences (RBHS).

CACP Mission

The Committee to Advance Our Common Purposes promotes the development of a university community that values and advances diversity and inclusion. We will help to nurture and sustain a civil, compassionate, intellectually honest, and inclusive academic community that is respectful and fosters dialogue, and interaction between those with differing views and belief systems.
